

Your report is on its way.

It comes by email, as a reply to the message you sent your file with, within a few hours and usually much sooner. This page is not the report. It is here so you know what you have bought and by when it lands.

What you will get

Every finding in full: which line in your own file it sits on, the arithmetic behind the amount, and what to do about it, including how far you can go before a change starts costing you business.

If it does not arrive

Check your spam folder first, then reply to your own email, or write to info@margingraph.com. A report that does not turn up gets refunded without an argument.

If a figure is wrong

Tell us which one. Every amount carries its own workings precisely so that it can be checked, and a finding that does not survive checking gets corrected or refunded. That is in the terms at margingraph.com/terms, not just here.
